

To Whom it may concern,

Good day. My name is Ashtweth (Glen Palise), I represent Panacea-BOCAF, a non-profit organization that was founded in order to support all engineers working with alternative and suppressed energy technologies. We aim to create a physical research & development centre physically located in Australia that will be immune to the current political and commercial conditions which are preventing free-energy technologies from surfacing publicly. The function of the centre is to encourage and advanced social reform by speeding up the implementation of these discoveries and inventions.

Here at Panacea-BOCAF, we do research and development projects into suppressed energy technologies, also we currently have over 200 registered engineers working with us, and on-going projects in open-sourced technologies. We also have available an online university (originally created by current Panacea-BOCAF member Patrick Kelly) for explaining simply what projects like the RotoVerter, Joe Cell, MRA, Floyd Sweet VTA, MEG etc are all about and how to better understand their inner workings – we are also working on adding more resources to our website for better dissemination of this type of knowledge and information.

One of the most important plans that we have is taking replicated, verified working, devices to the media in order to attract grants from philanthropic foundations for the creation of the Panacea-BOCAF centre for research & development, this project requires help and assistance now more than ever. Many people working in the free energy/alternative/suppressed energy scene bemoan the lack of a centre for proper, funded research & development, everyone is going about it on their own instead of collaborating together in a publicly known site for alternative energy advancement.

To do all of this above-board, and to disclose to the media (and to the public) working open-source alternative energy and overunity devices such as the RotoVerter technology - this is our main aim, and this is what we would like to talk about - also showing you video footage of research that we have uncovered, and replicated.

We have recently finished a energy suppression media script, which also shows the RotoVerter technology - which was disclosed in 1999 by Hector D. Perez Torres, publicly, open source, and with off-the-shelf parts. The cost of replicating one of these devices depend simply on if you have access to motors, capacitors, wiring and other components or not. Even if you have nothing, and purchase everything new, it is much lower than a couple of thousand dollars - and anyone can scrounge some of the materials from junkyards or from garages. This device - which we have already replicated and used, and all the others we intend to replicate in the future, needs urgent public knowledge and support - otherwise alternative energy will keep on being bought-out, threatened, suppressed and killed off (we reference the cases of Stanley Meyer, Joe Cell, John Bedini, Viktor Schauburger, Nikola Tesla, Jim Lawson, Floyd Sweet VTA and many, many others when it comes to information suppression, fund-limiting or downright threats and out-buying). This is the reason why we here at Panacea-BOCAF created this script, to inform the general public.

Thus we would like to make this available to you, and are eagerly looking forward to your response. We are also working on disclosing the RotoVerter and other devices on Australian TV, and any other media appointments that we can amass – we would like your help in further advancing knowledge about alternative and suppressed energy inventions.

Here we present the RotoVerter technology in a short 17minute video:

We have also created a video on RotoVerter related overunity research:

We are constantly filming video of working replications of current projects and uncovering material and information in order to replicate projects in the future. Given the subject matter on our website, I feel it would be important for Panacea-BOCAF to work together in order to present, to your listeners and readers, these types of information.

Please contact us with questions, queries or any other points of interest.
